Inspirations

FALL/WINTER 2026

Dear Sir or Madam,

We are pleased to present the Autumn–Winter 2026 Inspiration Catalogue — a publication designed for advertising agencies, marketers and companies seeking ideas for seasonal gift sets for customers, business partners and employees.

In this catalogue, we present themed selections of promotional items which can serve as a starting point for creating your own designs. Each set combines products selected for their functionality, aesthetics and the character of the autumn–winter season. These are ideas that you can freely modify, expand and adapt to your budget, the occasion and the needs of a specific recipient.

We also want to show that a corporate festive gift does not have to consist solely of sweets, coffee or other food products. A practical promotional item can stay with the recipient for much longer, prove useful in everyday life and serve as a regular reminder of the brand that gave it.

As a distributor of promotional gifts and gadgets offering a branding service, we have been supporting our clients for years in creating polished promotional campaigns. We are expanding our portfolio, carefully selecting products and ensuring that the solutions we offer meet quality standards and hold the necessary certifications for the European Union market.

Our ambition is to provide not only products, but also ideas that help build valuable relationships with your audience. That is why our catalogue features both tried-and-tested, practical classics and less obvious options from our portfolio — products that allow you to create original sets and make your offerings stand out for your customers.

We invite you to discover inspiration and create sets that combine seasonal flair, practicality and the brand's communication potential.

How does the catalogue work?

This publication has been produced to help you with your autumn and winter promotional projects — from the initial idea to the final proposal for the client.

In it, you will find themed sets of promotional items that can serve as inspiration for creating festive gifts, presents for staff and business partners, welcome packs, seasonal campaigns and sales promotion activities.

Each proposal is based on a specific theme and showcases products that, when combined, form a cohesive, well-thought-out whole. The main elements give the set its character, whilst the complementary products allow you to tailor its contents to your budget, the occasion, your target audience or the client's expectations.

The sets presented are not fixed solutions. You can choose products, swap them around, mix and match across collections, and create your own configurations. The catalogue is designed to inspire, suggest directions and show how to turn practical promotional items into an attractive and useful gift..

Choose, combine and put together your own combinations — so that each set reflects the character of the brand and meets the needs of a specific project.

The tea is slowly cooling down, the scent of the candle wafts in the background, and it's getting so cosy under the blanket that you don't want to go anywhere anymore. It's a good time to open your notebook, write down a few thoughts and take a break from everyday life.

There are still a few minor repairs to be done in the garage; the fairy lights won't hang themselves, and there's always something to do in the run-up to Christmas. The closer it gets to Christmas Eve, the more little jobs end up on the list. Fortunately, all it takes is a free evening, a hot cup of coffee and a well-stocked toolbox to get everything sorted in good time before Christmas.

After dark

A head torch provides light and leaves your hands free. A camping lamp can be unravelled into a string of lights, so once it gets dark, it's not only brighter but also more cosy.

Business Class

Special occasions call for more than just a standard gift. An anniversary, a promotion, a thank-you for collaboration or a gift for a key client are moments when quality, presentation and making a good impression really count. Elegant office accessories and modern additions create a cohesive collection for a doctor's surgery, a CEO's office or a business partner's briefcase.
